The number of reserved seats is around 200 and unreserved seats around 120. The latter may change in layout depending on the space needed by the orchestra and chorus and they are available on a first come first served basis. For those new to concert-going at St Endellion, the earlier you queue, the better the seat - some of which are in the best positions in the Church.

We cannot reserve all seats as chairs are moved around daily, particularly during the Church's busy Easter period. To decide your ticket purchase you need to weigh up the advantage of a reserved seat and no queueing, against the chance of getting one of the best seats in the house by arriving early and queueing - in both cases it might be advisable to bring a cushion, as both pews and chairs are a little hard!

All seats are good aurally and 95% have good sight lines. Wherever you sit we hope you will leave with the memory of an exceptional musical experience. We look forward to welcoming you to this year's Easter Festival.

Reserved seats are shown on the seating plan below. Please indicate your preference, though this cannot be guaranteed as seats are allocated on a first come first served basis.
